Before becoming an attorney, Robert worked for nearly 15 years at Farmers Insurance, Inc. in the Claims Department. He was responsible for handling/processing various auto, truck, commercial, and premises liability claims.

He conducted claims investigations, including obtaining statements, scene and vehicle inspections, reviewing accident and incident reports, medical records and insurance policy analysis, evaluating, negotiating and settling various claims. Robert was also responsible to investigate insurance coverage issues/questions. He interpreted policies for resolution of coverage disputes, including but not limited to, investigation of whether a policy was or was not in force on an applicable claim, and applied applicable insurance laws and cases to determine if specified claims were valid and should be covered losses. He was also involved with insurance agent/broker issues in the investigation of coverage disputes.

While working in claims he recommended a modification be made to Farmers liability claims investigation section of its Claims Manual, which was approved.

Farmers Insurance promoted him to the national position of Liability Claims Training Administrator. He was responsible for administration and training of all liability bodily injury claims adjusters from the basic level program provided at the branch claims offices, the intermediate level schools at the regional claims offices located throughout Farmers' operating territory, nationwide, and the advanced level liability claims training presented and administered at Farmers Insurance's Home Office. Robert was also responsible for Farmers Insurance Company's Claims Management schools presented and administered at the Home Office for training all claims supervisors & managers nationwide at Farmers responsible for claims personnel involved in auto and premises bodily injury liability, medical pay, commercial, homeowner property damage and auto physical and comprehensive damage claims.

Based on Robert's experience and insurance background, he is a qualified Insurance Expert Witness in various areas including coverage, claims practices and bad faith, compliance with the Insurance Fair Claims Practices Act, Insurance Code, applicable duties for appropriate, fair and prompt processing of claims, coverage disputes and associated insurance matters. Robert provides expert consulting and testimony. He has been deposed, was acknowledged as a qualified expert and testified in Los Angeles County Superior Court on a water loss case and rendered testimony in a similar case. He currently furnishes expert consulting and testimony services on various insurance cases. Prior assignments include commercial, auto, homeowner and wrongful death matters. He was recently retained on a medical pay denial of benefits case.

He is a current licensed, practicing attorney in California in good standing.

Robert Worth has also been retained as a mediator, separate from his legal practice and expert work. He has been approved by both defense and plaintiff counsel, based upon his many years working in claims. For an initial courtesy consultation, call him at: (818) 222-2433 or email:
